

Tap into the unique contributions of each generation and bridge generational gaps in the workplace.

Leading the Generations

Learn valuable coaching, training, and team-building techniques you can use as a leader to bring out the best in each employee.

For the first time in our nation's history, the workplace generational gap stretches over 40 years. Each generation is influenced by different social, economic, political and historical forces, shaping a unique view of the world and the workplace. This seminar will give an understanding of the generational differences, and show workplace leaders how to put those differences to work to allow employees to give their best contributions.

Presented by Hazel Reinhardt, a former Minnesota state demographer and current professor for the Executive Education Program at Northwestern University in Illinois who returns after her highly acclaimed seminar at NHCC last spring
