"I've seen my service learning experience as a positive one with many opportunities to learn from others. I volunteered at Park Brook Elementary School in Brooklyn Park. Many of the students that attend this school are low income and aren't able to have as many opportunities as other students. I've learned that just because of a student's financial or living condition they have the same skills as any other kid's. I have come to appreciate how lucky my friends and I are to have an option to attain a higher education. Many of these students I worked with won't be able to due to financial needs. I haven't only learned from my students, but from the staff as well. They have shown me that it takes patience to get through effectively to students. It is best to not rush the students to answer questions, but to let them take a moment to think about their response to a question. Through the course of the day at Park Brook I learned the importance of collaborating with other teachers and administration to make sure that the main objective is that the teachers can ensure success in each student." - Uma
